The Vampire Diaries season 6 episode 10

The Vampire Diaries season 6, episode 10, "Christmas Through Your Eyes," is slated as this year's final finale, and the stills give us plenty of looks at old holiday memories between Bonnie and Elena. Things are generally never okay at Christmas time in Mystic Falls. Take, for example, the episode where Klaus murdered Tyler's mother while jolly Christmas music played in the background. Need a reminder? Watch it below. See? And we don't have any hope for this year's Christmas theme episode, either. The synopsis for The Vampire Diaries fall finale reads: "With the holidays approaching, Bonnie attempts to replicate her favorite traditions, while reminiscing about happier times with her friends. Not able to return home to Mystic Falls for her favorite time of the year, Caroline is surprised when Sheriff Forbes brings the holidays to her at Whitmore College. Meanwhile, after discovering that Jo has gone missing, Alaric turns to Damon and Elena for help, while Liv and Luke find themselves at odds when Tyler approaches them with a risky plan. Elsewhere, Jeremy helps Matt carry out a plan to take down Enzo but grows concerned when Matt takes things too far. Lastly, Stefan is forced to break some devastating news to Caroline." Bonnie is alone, Caroline can't make her normal festive holiday party happen with all the drama, Luke and Liv have to fight for their lives with an (possibly) untrustworthy Tyler, and Matt is going off the deep end. Merry Christmas, everyone! Preview 'The Vampire Diaries' season 6, episode 10 stills With all of that information, the stills for this episode are particularly interesting. Most of them seem to be from Bonnie's flashbacks about old holiday times, but others give us a little more action. 'The Vampire Diaries' returns January 2015 After this mid-season finale The Vampire Diaries is slated to return on January 22, 2015 with episode 11, "Woke Up With a Monster." Does the title imply that Tyler possibly kills Kai and turns into a werewolf again, and Liv sleeps with him for saving her life? Probably not, but hey we like our crack theories. Bonnie reminisces about happier times in Mystic Falls as she tries to replicate her favorite holiday traditions; Sheriff Forbes brings the holidays to Caroline; Jo disappears; Stefan must reveal devastating news. Firstly, let's just appreciate having a proper bad guy, with no ambiguous motives or mystical connection to our main characters. Kai is evild bad guy in the purest sense of the words and, while that might be awkward on another show, Vampire Diaries really needed to take a break from the doppeelgängers and grey-area villains. Any chance at a redemptive arc for Kai seems to be gone but, then again, Klaus killed Aunt Jenna and then got his own show, so what do I know? Kai does now have Jo, the twins and Elena, which will likely force through a showdown in the mid-season premiere. I'm not sure how I feel about Elena being targeted, since I can already see how things will play out and it's going to pull focus away from Damon's valiant efforts to rescue Bonnie, but I guess the writers needed some way to engineer some relevance for their heroine. Kai also has magic, serving the dual purpose of bringing down the Mystic Falls no-magic barrier and making Kai a much more threatening presence in a world full of vampires. Jo has magic too, though, and a huge part of me is hoping that all four of the Gemini clan will make it out of the season alive. Alaric needs a girlfriend who doesn't die immediately, Kai's a brilliant character, Liv and Tyler is working well so far, and it'd be a shame to lose Luke just because he's the least interesting. I say that merely because the writers have decided not to bother with him this season, which is incredibly unfortunate if they're expecting us to care about his fate at some point down the road. After all the fuss they made about creating their first gay character, it's weird. As well as the main plot, there was also fun Christmas stuff that the show hadn't really been able to play with before. Other than the adorable scene between Stefan and Damon at the end of the episode, there was also the notion that Caroline and her mum would spend time each with other at Whitmore even though the former couldn't actually go back home and the flashbacks to a time when Caroline, Elena and Bonnie didn't know what trauma awaited them just a few months down the line.
